Traditionally Who Pays for What

Before you start planning your wedding, it is important to set your wedding budget. This avoids any unwanted surprises. Decide what is most important to you and your fiancé and plan your budget accordingly. There aren't absolute rules on who pays for what. In today's world, it is not unusual for the bride and groom to pay for everything or for the groom's family to share some of the financial obligations of the bride's family. Some of the traditional financial division has changed over the years. Communication with all parties involved is vital in setting your wedding plans.

Typical Wedding Cost

Very few couples have a limitless budget for their wedding. You will need to set priorities on what is most important to you. Would you like a large framed bridal portrait to portray for generations? A large formal reception? Perhaps it is an extravagant honeymoon. It may be you want to have a great photo selection and a fantastic video to remember that special day. But it is your choice. Each wedding is unique to the couple.

Your budget may look like this:

Ceremony and reception	40%
